RESIDENTIAL ARCHITECTURE - HOUSES (ALTERATIONS AND ADDITIONS)

The Residential Architecture – Houses (Alterations & Additions) category recognises achievement in the design of projects which include renovations, alterations or additions to an existing building whether or not the building was residential in nature in the first instance. Projects designed for single occupancy or up to two self-contained dwellings may be entered in this category. Generally, projects considered in this category fall within BCA Class 1a.

AWARD | Ruckers Hill House | Studio Bright

Opening the glass door that separates old from new, a new world of architectural exploration awaits. Studio Bright has orchestrated a mise en scène of stages as new experiences and construction detail reveals itself. Tremendous effort has been put in to address craftsmanship, materiality, playfulness, and they ooze a genuine urge to create something out of the ordinary.

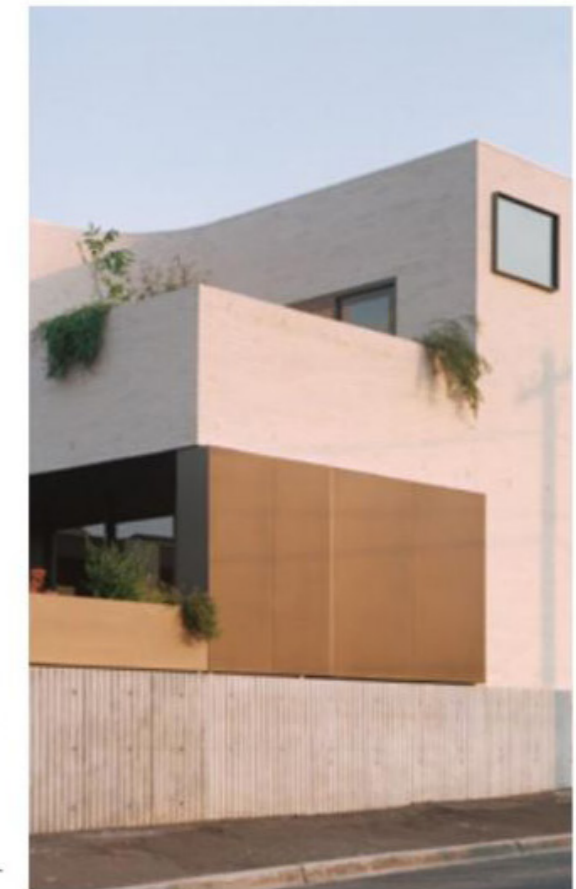

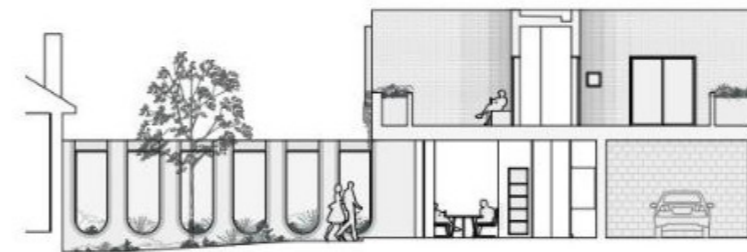

Ruckers Hill House is an undeniably well-considered piece of architecture, with an equally considerate and playful response and finishing to the original home internally. It continues Studio Bright's commitment to addressing how architecture contributes to streetscape, and their masterful manipulation of form and space. This is a house designed to be occupied and used. Every room and every space has purpose; the house has quiet moments and yet is full of energy.

The layout is the opposite of what an extension is commonly understood to be – that is, open-plan living, dining and kitchen for entertainment – instead small cosy spaces offer a different way of living, which is particularly apt in the current time of the pandemic that we are living in.

COMMENDATION

Garden House | BKK Architects

Photographer Derek Swatwell

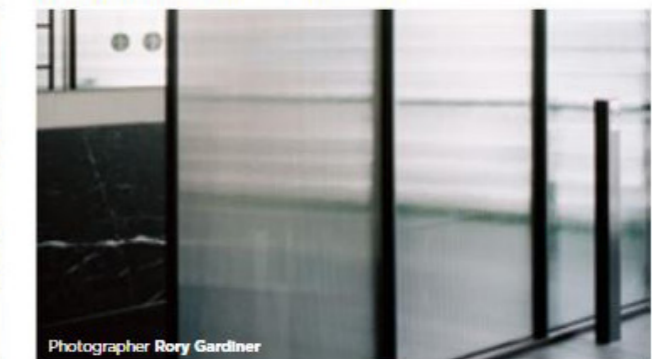

True to its name, Garden House has allowed its lush rear garden to take priority of site and then generously throws open the modest internal spaces to it.

The addition successfully unrolls new program from the existing home, progressively revealing itself as a linear journey through crafted moments and becoming in essence a delightful verandah to the garden.

BKK Architects has provided a wonderful response to home; one of inviting warmth and solitude, but immediately affable and absolutely livable.

Elm Tree Place | Eastop Architects

Photographer Rory Gardiner

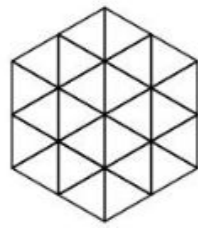

Elm Tree House is a skilful attempt to capture and manipulate space through the sensitive utilisation of natural light and materials.

Taking cues from the previous addition by Nonda Katsalidis, the project adds new layers while peeling away old, still maintaining a strong dialogue with the existing. Deft use of transparency, reflectivity and shifting natural light has resulted in sensorial spaces with bold tonality and varying moods.

This is a carefully executed project that captures and enhances the spirit of the old and new.

The Interior Architecture category recognises achievement in the design of an interior spatial environment and may include projects completed within a new building or the interior refurbishment of an existing building.
